BONGKONG JOCKEY CLUB.

PROPOSAL TO EXPEL MR FRASER SMITH.

An extraordinary general meeting of the Hongkong Jockey Club was held this afternoon at the City Hall for the purpose of dealing with a proposal to expel Mr. R. Fraser Smith from the Club. Hon. P. Ryrie, Chairman of the Club, presided, and there was a large attendance of members, about 120.

Before the business of the meeting had been commenced,

Mr. J. J. Francis, Q.C., rose to call attention to the presence of reporters. He vented to suggest considering the business of the meeting that this was a private meeting.

Mr. Fraser Smith said he had the strongest objection to the proceedings of the meeting not being open to the public press. If the stewards of the Club and the persons who had signed the requisition had done anything they were ashamed of, he was not ashamed of anything and he insisted on his rights as a member of the club and that everything that took place would be published in the papers for the benefit of racing men, not only in this colony but throughout the world.

The Chairman.—You have a section of the press at your own disposal.

Mr. Fraser Smith said he was not there as a representative of the press but as a member of the Hongkong Jockey Club and he meant to uphold his rights. He wanted no hole-and-corner proceedings, and he appealed to all who came there as gentlemen to support him in his demand that the proceedings should be public.

The Chairman.—You can put a motion to that effect.

Mr. Francis said he only made his suggestion in the interests of Mr. Fraser Smith. When proceedings were being taken for expelling him from the club he might not like to have them published. If however he was desirous of publicity he could bring forward no objection to having the proceedings published hereafter. Therefore he (Mr. Francis) withdrew the remarks he had made. If however reporters were allowed to remain he would, considering the character of Mr. Fraser Smith, warn them that they had better be careful as to what they published, because if anything they published did not suit Mr. Fraser Smith nothing that he said there would prevent him from objecting to it afterwards, and if he proceeded in the blackguardly way in which he had commenced—

Mr. Smith.—Order. Mr. Chairman, I call him to order.

The Chairman.—I think remarks of that kind are entirely out of order.

Mr. Smith.—If Mr. Francis were not so old a man as he is I should have responded by measures which no doubt he would have been taken (ries of "Oh" and "Order"). I have a right to complain that what Mr. Francis has just said is entirely out of order, and I think, "sir, is a matter of right and justice he should be called to order.

The Chairman.—I have called him to order. If you wish to have the reporters present I shall propose it myself.

Mr. Smith seconded and the motion was carried.

The Clerk of the Course (Mr. Rough) then read the notice calling the meeting.

The Chairman said the business for which the meeting had been called gave him great pain, for the reason that he was as much to blame. Mr. Smith was as good a sportsman as ever Hongkong knew. The proposed resolution was a very severe one, but it might be annulled at a subsequent confirmatory meeting, and at next meeting he would suggest a ballot instead of a show of hands because he thought it would be best for Mr. Smith. Perhaps there were circumstances connected with Mr. Smith's case in Court that were derogatory to his character as a member of the Club; but they had still to get Mr. Smith's explanation. There had been some explanation in the course of a very extensive correspondence and probably he might have a further explanation. He hoped every member of the Club in voting would divest his mind of anything like animosity, spite or anything of that kind. Certain gentlemen had sent in a requisition which had the unanimous support of the stewards, and if the decision of the meeting was against their suggestion that the member should be expelled, he was quite certain that the ten gentlemen who signed the requisition and also the stewards would do so to their credit.

After some irregular squabbling, the Chairman put the motion for the adjournment to the meeting, when two (Mr. Smith and Mr. McLean) voted for it and the entire assembly against it.

Mr. Fraser Smith was then called upon to speak. He thought they should disown their minds from racing and simply consider whether Mr. Smith's conduct was such as disintitled him to membership or not. Whether he had been a good sportsman in regards racing matters was another question, with which they had not to do. He thought he might say on the part of the ten gentlemen who had signed the requisition that they acted purely in the interest of the Club.

Mr. Fraser Smith said he thought it would be well to speak. He thought further that they should have an assurance that their action taken by the stewards in this matter was legal. Rule 40, under which these proceedings had been taken, was passed at a meeting on 27th January last. He was not present at that meeting unfortunately owing to the cool-headedness of Hongkong justice. He had asked to be supplied with a copy of the minutes of that meeting, but had been refused, and he begged now (40) formally to inform the stewards that he would take advantage of that refusal in any subsequent proceedings he might consider it necessary to take.

Mr. Fraser Smith (with a tone of contempt). Master! He actually had to go to our German friends to get three members to fill up his list before his petition was sent in to the stewards. I am sorry that Mr. Mackintosh, who proposed that resolution and Mr. Master who seconded it, did not think fit to inform this meeting in what way my offence was made a criminal offence for which he was made a criminal before the rule was passed. If the stewards would tell him whether they had sufficient authority to justify them in these proceedings he would propose the adjournment of the meeting for a week, then he would tell them what he proposed to do.

The Chairman.—If the rule is not retrospective you have a very good case. I may tell you, however, that we have taken legal advice on the point—although I don't place much confidence in lawyers myself.

Mr. Smith.—Then I only wish we could have been attacking each other's characters until we have satisfied ourselves on the point.

Mr. Master.—This is not the place to decide legal points. That is for the decision of the Supreme Court of Hongkong (applause).

The Chairman.—But they have not always been correct (ries of "Oh").

Mr. Smith then proposed that the meeting be adjourned for a week. He did not want to carry favour with anyone, but he asked them, English, Scotch, German or whatever they were, for justice, and he would have it. If he could not get from them the genuineness of heart which would it seek in the law courts, he would be satisfied.

Mr. Smith's delay would not do any harm so far as the justice of the case was concerned but it would enable him to take steps to place every one of the stewards in the same position as he was (ries of "Order").

The Chairman.—You must not offer threats.

Mr. Smith.—Wait a minute, sir, you don't know what I refer to. I want to test the question whether a law of a properly constituted Club can be made retrospective.

At this point Mr. Smith turned and addressed himself to several gentlemen, stating meekly to them and asking the qualifications of the chair against the "malitiae" of Jardine's, a request which was granted by a series of "order" and interruption. Resuming, Mr. Smith said he would ask for an adjournment of a week. It would hurt none and the result might possibly be that the rules of the Hongkong Jockey Club would be made retrospective.

Mr. W. P. MacLean seconded the motion for adjournment.

The Chairman.—You must put it as an amendment.

Mr. Smith.—I shall put it in this way—whether the stewards after what they have heard will agree to the adjournment of the meeting for a week.

Mr. MacLean.—I think it would be well to call Mr. Fraser Smith's attention to rule 22, which binds all members of the Club to the observance of the rules and regulations and of the by-laws made thereunder, or of any other rules, regulations or by-laws from time to time in force in the Club. Mr. Fraser Smith agreed to submit to the rules.

Mr. Fraser Smith, in passing Mr. Master, said "I wish you'd come outside"—a remark which he repeated at the door.

The resolution was then put to the meeting, when all but two or three in the room voted for it. The Clerk declared that the votes for numbered 85. On a show of hands against the resolution being voted not one was held up.

club, when I was convicted by a majority of one in a jury of seven against the evidence and against the judge's summing up. What was I convicted of—of landing, on the advice of my solicitor, a paper to the Protector of Chinese in the colony, saying "It is my duty to hand that paper to you to do with as you see fit." From that date to the final I stand before heaven. I knew nothing of what was done. I have tried to clearly prove what I have stated. I think it is dishonest and dishonorable now when I have in the Supreme Court a case where I swear I shall vindicate my character to take the present action against me. Englishman bring of fairplay, then stand. Mr. Smith is there to vindicate his character, going to Australia for the express purpose of bringing evidence. If that is English fairplay, then stand. Mr. Smith then went to deal with the other side of the petition. When I referred to Mr. Mackintosh he said he could quote three or four instances in Mr. Mackintosh's business career which were as injurious as what he had been accused of. His own personal character was assailed and he was entitled to deal with the character of the petitioners, and he meant to do it. He then accused Mr. Mackintosh of conspiracy worse than his. Mr. Veitch was next attacked in connection with something which occurred with regard to the subscription gents.

Mr. Master.—This is not the place to decide legal points. That is for the decision of the Supreme Court of Hongkong (applause).

Mr. MacLean rose to protest.

Mr. Fraser Smith rose at the same time and objected to Mr. Francis making him responsible for the actions of his (Mr. Smith's) colleagues, whom he was proud to own. He twice called Mr. Francis a low blackguard and said he would make him hide his diminished head etc.

Mr. Francis—I do not seek to hold Mr. Fraser Smith responsible for what his friends did and never said anything of that sort. This meeting is called, not for the purpose of discussing the legality of rule 40, but to pass or refuse to pass the resolution proposed by Mr. Mackintosh.

It is not competent to consider the foul charges that can be brought, the character of the offence for which that person is convicted and imprisoned to be a very serious thing and the gentleman who is convicted may not suffer in the estimation of their friends. But when a man is convicted of a thoroughly dishonest attempt to ruin another man's character by bringing against him one of the foulest charges that can be brought, the character of the offence for which that person is convicted and imprisoned to be a very serious thing and the gentleman who is convicted may not suffer in the estimation of their friends.

Mr. MacLean.—So many gentlemen in the newspaper profession have been convicted of libel that the offence has come to be aught a very trifling thing and the gentlemen who are convicted may not suffer in the estimation of their friends.
